

Happy Marathon Monday Everyone!

It is hot out there today, so as someone who trained for a marathon in 90+ degree weather, I am wishing all the runners, workers, volunteers, and the crowd good health today and no injuries. I ran my marathon when I was 19, and placed first in my age group.

Marathons are about grit, guts, and the long haul. Just like campaigns. You have to pace yourself so you don't flame out before you even hit the halfway mark.

After a year on the campaign trail and traveling to over 250 places in the Commonwealth and speaking to thousands of people in their neighborhoods, we are just as energized as when we began this fight to make people's lives better.

We are not stopping now, and we are encouraged and thrilled by your enthusiastic support. I am the candidate with the real-world, on the ground experience that it will take to beat Scott Brown.

Please join us!

Stay cool out there-

Marisa

P.S. And just in case this race needs a sprint at the end, I can do that too...the 100-yard dash was my race when I ran Track & Field in high school.
